PRO

An ACI Center of Excellence
for Advancing Productivity

The what, why, and who.

www.concreteproductivity.org

What?

PRO is a catalyst for solving the barriers to constructability to advance concrete construction productivity. Through a collaborative approach, PRO aims to optimize labor and time against materials by improving structural design and construction processes.

Why?

PRO will collaborate with designers, materials suppliers, and contractors to identify and resolve issues that negatively impact productivity in concrete construction. The Center and its Members aim to advance new technologies and processes that improve productivity beyond historic levels.

Who?

Individuals and organizations interested in joining may include:

- Industry leaders seeking to advance concrete design and construction
- Innovative individuals that share PRO's vision
- Companies seeking to improve employee expertise and business results
- Concrete contractors facing complex obstacles

Core Functions:

- Designer + Contractor collaboration
- Industry outreach
- Interaction with ACI technical committees on constructability

The American Concrete Institute (ACI) will house and manage the Center, with initial staffing including an Executive Director and administrative staff supported by the Institute. PRO will operate under the guidance of a Board of Directors, with funding provided by the Center's Members.

Initial Board of Directors:

Cary Kopczynski, Chair:
Senior Principal & CEO of CKC Structural Engineers
